

Redistricting Map

Below is a map that represents a fictitious state with two political parties, the Grey Party and the White Party. Three Congressional districts were formed with vertical lines marking the boundaries. In each district, the White Party has the majority of votes. That's great if you're a member of the White Party, not so good if you're a member of the Grey Party. This is not an accurate representation of the Grey Party voting in the state.

Redistricting Map

Redistrict the map using the following plan:

- 3 districts
- Each district must have 5 blocks
- Grey Party has majority in two districts
- White party has majority in one district

- 3 districts
- Each district must have 5 blocks
- White Party has majority in two districts
- Grey party has majority in one district
