

Forests covered the land, and there were many varieties of plants. There were many rivers, too.

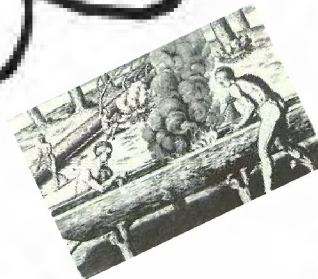

Powhatans lived on the Eastern Coast of the United States.

They built their homes from wood and bark.

They farmed, fished, and hunted.

They built canoes to travel and to fish.