

everything she believed? How could she face the disappointment in Sarah's eyes?

For Prudence, there was only one answer.

In January 1833 a new student named Sarah Harris took her seat at one of the desks in Prudence's classroom.

Old-fashioned school desk now on display at the Prudence Crandall house. Desks like these may have been used by her pupils.